

LAST CASE FOR THIS TERM NOW BEFORE THE COURT

William Smith, Quakertown, Charged With Involuntary Manslaughter

CAR OCCUPANT KILLED

Several Pleas of Guilty to Be Entered in Cases
Today

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 14.—William Smith, 19, of Quakertown, the last defendant to stand trial at the December term of criminal court of Bucks county, charged with involuntary manslaughter, went on trial Tuesday afternoon before President Judge Hiram H. Keller. The December term will be completed today after several pleas of guilty are entered in other cases.

Smith was arrested following the death of a companion, John Kile, of Quakertown, on the night of June 30, about 12:30 a. m., as Smith, Kile and Samuel Kile—no relative of John Kile—were riding home from a dance hall near Richlandtown to Quakertown in William Smith's automobile.

Smith's car ran off the highway, tore down more than twenty feet of hedge fence and struck a telephone pole which was broken off in the crash. John Kile was instantly killed. William Smith suffered severe injuries and Samuel Kile sustained injuries that kept him in the hospital for six weeks.

Dr. Harvey Feigley, member of the Quakertown Hospital staff, testified that he saw John Kile in the hospital, and that he was dead at the time. He also stated that he treated Smith, the defendant, and detected the odor of liquor on his breath.

Miss Alma Kleinbach, Quakertown hospital nurse, testified that she was present when Smith was being treated and that she, too, noticed the odor of liquor on his breath "very easily," and that he was partially unconscious. Chief of Police Harry Rhoads, of Quakertown, testified that he saw the autopsy performed and from it learned that Kile died of a fractured skull and other injuries. The accident happened, the officer stated, on a macadam road at a point that was level and straight. After the wreck, the Smith car looked like an accordion. Chief Rhoads testified. The Chief also described the side of the road where trolley tracks had been removed and that section covered with cinders.

Samuel Kile, the last Commonwealth witness called, testified that Smith on the way home from the Half-Moon dance hall did not act "quite naturally." The witness declared that he himself had nothing to drink that night. He stated that about five minutes before they started home he had asked the two Kiles to take him back to Quakertown and that they consented. The witness said he saw no obstructions ahead of him in the highway that might cause the car to go into the ditch. Samuel Kile further testified that Smith "must have been driving between 50 and 60 miles an hour at least," although when cross-examined he said that he never drove a car himself.

In opening for the defense, Attorney C. William Freed, of Quakertown, stated that he would produce testimony to show that the Smith car got caught in the soft cinders off the highway, struck an iron pipe, which caused the crash; that Smith had taken a drink of wine given to him earlier in the evening by the boy who was killed, but that he was not under the influence of liquor.

Max Hess, of Philadelphia, former manager of the Bristol district for a well-known sewing machine company, charged on three counts of embezzlement, was acquitted in court yesterday by a jury after Judge Keller had directed the verdict on the grounds that the case was improperly brought in Bucks county, ruling that it should have been brought in another county. The Court directed that the costs be paid by the county.

MILLS ESTIMATES BEER REVENUE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—Secretary of the Treasury Mills today estimated the beer tax proposal in the Collier bill would yield $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 revenue the first year. This is about half the estimate of Democratic House leaders.

The Treasurer's estimate was given to the House Ways and Means Committee which is concluding testimony in the beer and light wines measure. Mills told the committee the tax yield might be increased if malt syrup is subjected to a compensatory tax.

FRANCE'S ACTION A SURPRISE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—France's decision to default on her debt of $19,000,000 due tomorrow came as something of a shock to officials here today. Official Washington had been confident France would make the comparatively small payment.

There is little this government can do under the circumstances. There is no agency that can compel payment except war, and no one thinks of going to war to collect the debt.

NOT GUILTY BUT HE MUST PAY THE COSTS

Vincent Neapolitan, 32, Accused of Fraudulent Conversion of $282

COLLECTED AT RACES

Not guilty but directed to pay the costs was the verdict given Vincent Neapolitan, 32, Glenside, charged with fraudulent conversion by his sister-in-law.

Neapolitan was tried before Judge Keller in Court Room No. 2. The case was the result of charges preferred by Neapolitan's sister-in-law that he had failed to turn over to her $282 which he had collected from patrons at an automobile race at South Langhorne, September 24th.

The prosecutor, Jennie Neapolitan, 105 Easton road, Glenside, twenty-four-year-old widow of the race driver, William Neapolitan, who was killed in an automobile race at Woodbury, N. J., testified her brother-in-law, Vincent, the defendant, collected $282 from fans on the stands at the Bucks county oval, and refused to turn the money over to her.

A brother, Michael Moffa, a witness for the Commonwealth, substantiated his sister's testimony. He told the court he met the defendant and his sister, Mrs. Neapolitan, in Germantown, following the collection that Saturday afternoon, and he failed to turn over the proceeds.

George Schulermerich, of Oak Lane, who announced to the fans assembled for the race on September 24, that a collection would be made for the "Neapolitan family," stated he did not announce that the money collected would defray funeral expenses, but that it was for the deceased racer's family.

Vincent Neapolitan, 34, of Easton Road, Glenside, testified he and his sister-in-law agreed to collect a sum of money and use it to pay for the funeral services. According to the defendant, a tombstone costing $250 was erected, and $15 was paid to a priest for the saying of a mass.

It was also brought out during the defendant's testimony that the mother of William paid $62 to the undertaker as part of the expenses. "I offered to give her $100, but she said she 'did not want any charity money' and told us to spend the rest of the money on a monument." He denied ever refusing to turn over the money, but told the court she did not live up to the agreement.

Neapolitan, who was represented by Henry Drizin, a Philadelphia attorney, exhibited great emotion as he referred to the tragic death of his brother. "I know that Bill won purses amounting

Irish Governor

The appointment of Donal Buckley (above) as Governor-General of the Irish Free State is regarded as the most generous gesture of friendship which the British Government has made to Ireland in hundreds of years. ## OFFER WIDE SELECTION

By Gift Seeker

NOT IN YEARS have prices been so low. A jaunt to the business section of Bristol will prove this to the most skeptical. For a small amount of money gifts in excellent taste and lasting quality can be found in abundance.

Among the gifts that will last a lifetime are fountain pens manufactured and backed by nationally-known companies. And in this category are those to be found at Hoffman's Cut Rate Store, Mill street. One set that I paid particular attention to, and which any man would be pleased to receive is a green and black pen, with base of green onyx on which are mounted gold-finished ash tray and cigarette holder. Complete? Yes, indeed. A lasting gift? Again, yes. And how economical!

A well-known center for toys in this borough is Cohen's Hardware Store. Mr. Cohen has a full line of "Buddy-L" toys. And when you once glimpse the oil truck among the aggregation you'll be carried away, and immediately start to check off the small boys on your list. This sturdy truck, which bears the weight of an individual, so strong is its construction, has a green tank on a red base and the cab is finished in black. The two small lids atop the tank are chained together, and on the rear is a faucet that really works. It's a toy that will last for years through much hard usage.

Hot-oven China is an answer to the gift problem for the home-maker. L. C. Wetting, 312 Mill street, has a full line of such. These pieces are "Safe in the oven—beautiful on the table." On some of the pieces the knobs atop are set in depressed lids, in order that they will slide easily between the shelves of the refrigerator. Beautiful

PINCHOT SHOWS ROAD PROGRESS IN BUCKS COUNTY

Gives Statistics As To Money Collected and Spent

RURAL ROUTES BETTER

132 Miles of Rural Road
Completed Since August, 1931

(Special to Courier)

HARRISBURG, Dec. 14.—Up to November 15, Governor Pinchot announced today, 4,900 miles of road of great local importance had been completed by the State Highway Department—low-cost, all-weather, macadam roads that tie in with main highways. The State Highway Department prepared for the Courier the map which shows the location of work finished in this county. It is a valuable guide to road users.

"For years," Governor Pinchot said, "people in cities and towns have had the benefit of improved main roads. But the people in the back country—in purely rural and isolated sections, had to be content with wishing happy days would sometime come for them, too.

"The first promise that the farmer would get out of the mire was made in 1918, but 13 years later dwellers on the majority of Pennsylvania farms were separated from good roads by many miles of muck. That would still be the case had we continued the policy of putting down only rigid surfaces of extremely high cost.

"Fulfilling my campaign promise, the State in 1931 took over 20,000 miles of township roads—approximately a quarter of the total. Critics shouted that we couldn't do what we promised to do—that we not only couldn't build the mileage we promised, but that if we did it wouldn't stay put. Time proved how wrong they were. We built not only 4,900 miles of low-cost rural roads, but more than 1,700 miles on the old State Highway System. He who runs over them can read the story.

"Pennsylvania's record is an unprecedented achievement. It has attracted the attention of all the nation's road builders—and word is trickling through to rural regions from California to Florida that Pennsylvania has started something worth everybody's while. And we shouldn't forget, either, that the vastness of the operation has made the Pennsylvania Highway Department the greatest relief organization in America."

Governor Pinchot supplied the following figures detailing 15 months' activities in Bucks County:

Assessed valuation of property in county: $44,808,123.

Tax collected in county by township for road purposes, 1931: $426,534.67.

Average millage in county, 1931: 11.00.

Possible reduction of millage in county: 2.45.

Original township road mileage in county: 1,584.64.

Township roads taken over by State under rural route act: 408.03.

Present mileage, township roads remaining under control of township supervisors: 1,176.61.

Average township road funds per mile after State took over rural routes: $362.51.

Average township road funds per mile before State took over rural routes: $269.17.

Increases per mile available to township supervisors on remaining township roads: $93.34.

SCHOOL DIRECTORS CONSIDER CHANGES IN EDMONDS' ACT

Bristol Group Meets at Doylestown
With County
Association

PROPOSALS ARE HEARD

Plan Does Not Meet With Approval of The Directors

Howard E. James, superintendent of the Bristol public schools; Emil Metzger, treasurer, and Doron Green, president of the Bristol school board, attended the meeting of the Bucks County School Directors' Association, which was held at Doylestown yesterday. The real object of the meeting was to enlighten the directors regarding the proposed changes in the Edmonds' Act and the methods to be employed in decreasing the cost of education, both of which propositions are to be considered by the State Legislature at its coming session.

Feeling that this is a matter in which not only the teachers are interested but the whole community as well, because it will have a direct effect upon the tax rate, the Courier obtained from the Bristol representatives a statement of the impressions which they received, after listening to the speakers.

These impressions are given in the summary below:

It appears that a proposition is now under consideration to make a cut of 10% in teachers' salaries, and to declare a two-year statutory moratorium on yearly increments. According to the provisions of the Edmonds' Act, the minimum salary of grade teachers is $1,000, and high school teachers $1,200. It also provides that each set of teachers shall receive a yearly increment of $100 until the grade teachers reach a maximum of $1,400 and the high school teachers $1,600. If this moratorium is declared the yearly increments will be done away with for two years.

"Thus far the proposition sounds well, but the State will not stop here in its proposed revision of the Edmonds' Act. This act grants to third class districts like Bristol, the sum of $350 per teacher, to assist in the payment of teachers' salaries. The State proposes to change this part of the act, so that third class districts will receive $100 less, or $250 per teacher.

"There is also under consideration what is called an equalization scheme, by which all the school districts in the State are to be placed upon an equal basis. To the ordinary citizen this plan is somewhat complicated. The proposition is worked out something like this: The true assessed value of property in a community is divided by the number of teachers employed in the schools, to obtain the valuation per teacher. The State is to arbitrarily set the amount to be used for equalization purposes at $166,666.66 which represents the valuation per teacher. Multiplying this amount by six mills the sum of $1,000 is obtained, which represents the amount upon which the appropriations embodied in the Edmonds' Act have been based.

"Under this new scheme, if the valuation per teacher amounts to less than $166,666.66, then the State agrees to appropriate to this district an amount sufficient to bring the total up to $1,000. Perhaps an example would be more elucidating: A school district has 30 teachers with an assessed valuation of $4,500,000. By dividing the number of teachers into the assessed valuation, according to the formula, would give a valuation per teacher of $150,000. Then multiplying this amount by six mills would show a product of $900. In this event the State would give the district $100 to bring it up to the equalization amount of $1,000 in addition to the regular appropriation.

"This scheme would not affect Bristol in the least. The true assessed valuation of property is $13,400,000, which amount divided by the 72 teachers employed in the Bristol schools would make nearly $200,000 valuation per teacher.

WHY RIPLEY SAYS MAN IS FUNNIEST CREATURE THAT HE HAS SEEN

(By "The Stroller")

There was a fire in Hulmeville two days ago. And like at most any fire there were incidents which appeared quite humorous after the excitement.

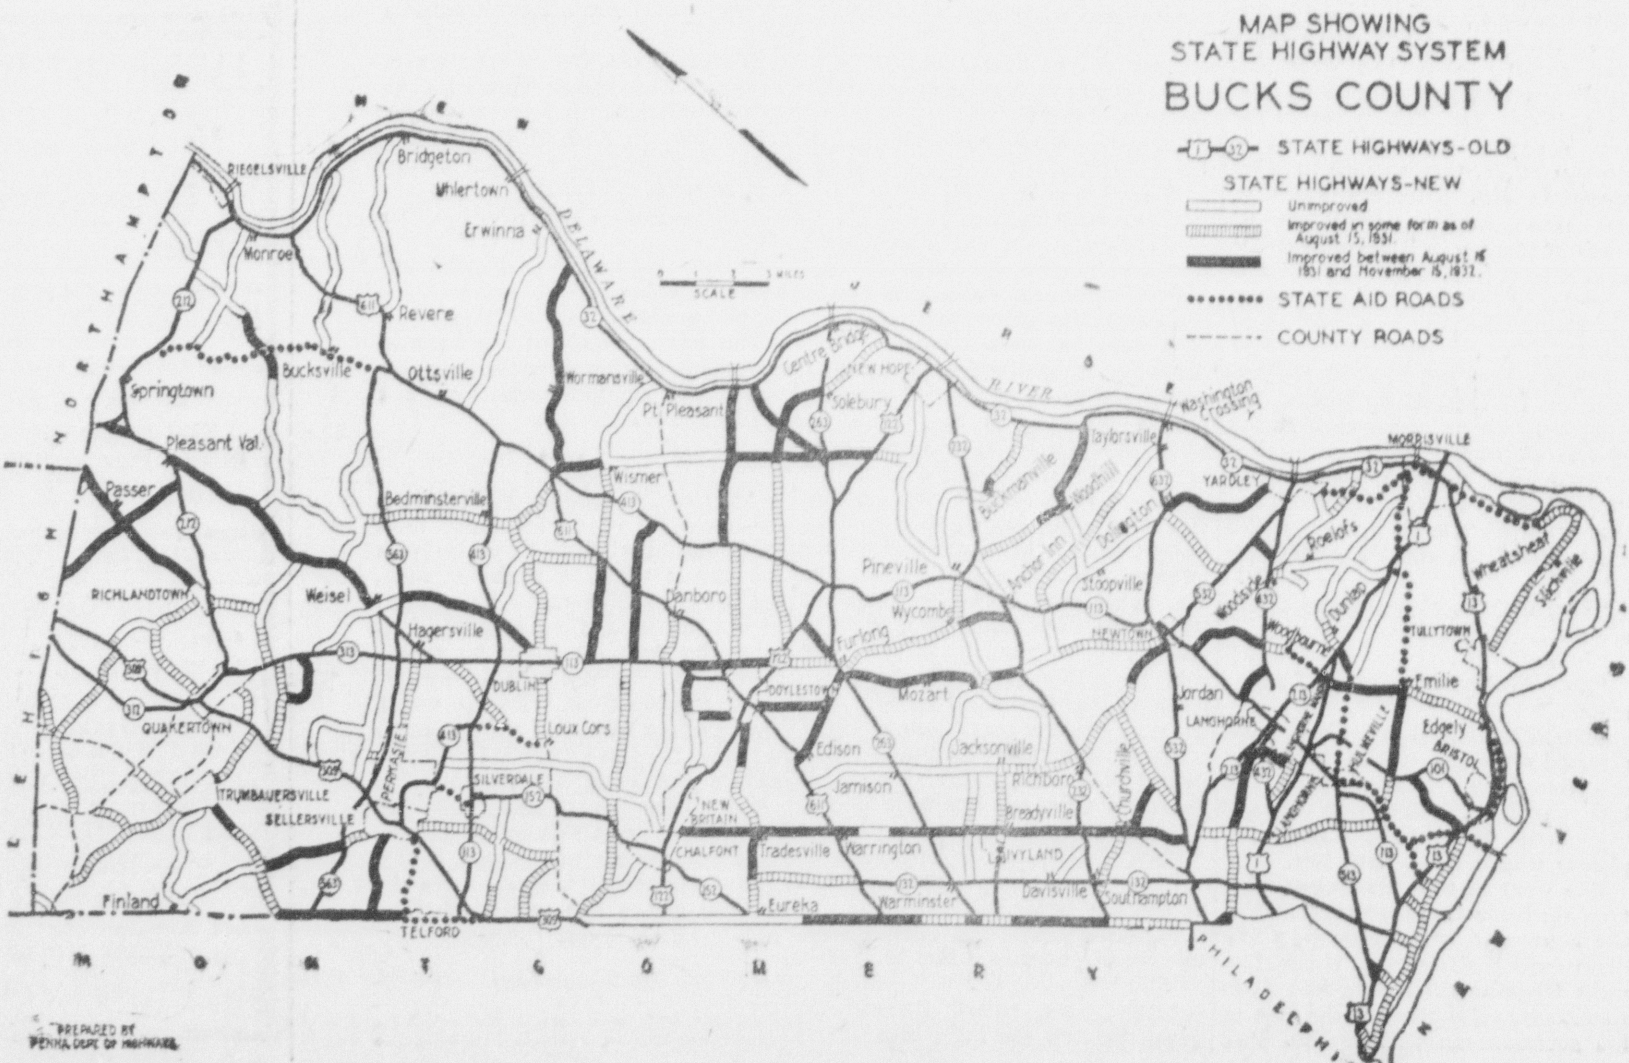

One young man upon being called from bed walked 150 feet to the garage and commandeered his car to ride to the blaze four doors away.

Then there is another story going the rounds of how one member of the bucket brigade snatched up a pailful of water which had been left on the porch and hurrying to the brook nearby as if his life depended upon it, dumped the contents therein.

PEACE TALK

The world knows too well the hazards of war. To prepare for them to venture to run them, statesmen have long been accustomed. Their best provision and their most careful planning often have gone wrong. But still their common attitude has been that certain risks are unavoidable in the development of nations and in the growth and complexity of international contacts. But who of them is willing today to risk something, perhaps much, for the sake of peace?

Just because plans to secure the settlement of all controversies between nations by peaceful methods are necessarily, being man-made, imperfect in the sense that they cannot absolutely guarantee the prevention of war, public men draw back from them as if affrighted. Their hearts would not quail in the presence of hostilities thrust upon them, but they grow timid and spiritless when some one points out a possible defect in the machinery to establish peace.

There has been a tremendous and futile war of mere words about how to prevent war. The disputants talk more like dialecticians than like statesmen. They discover hidden dangers where none exist. Mere suspicion of a defect is justification enough in their poor blind eyes for voting against any plan and for turning others against it.

Until some one is ready to incur great risks, to put all to the touch, the prospect is that we shall see the statesmen of the world continuing to slay war with their mouths but doing nothing whatever practical and positive to bring about and establish just and lasting peace.

BRITAIN'S CHAMPIONSHIP

The question, "What is the matter with England?" has been asked often during the years since the end of the war and is answered by Englishmen in an almost stereotyped tone of self-deprecation. The British have gone too far in social services in comparison with their neighbors. Two million unemployed are living on the country. The nation is living off its capital instead of its income. The British are the most heavily taxed people in the world.

How soon will the same question be asked about the United States, and the same answer made? Perhaps never. Possibly before another year rolls around.

Federal, state and municipal governments are going too far with their emergency social services. Thousands of persons who could support themselves if hunger were the alternative dread the return of prosperity when they will have to return to work. Millions are living on the country. The nation is living off its capital and going heavily in debt instead of living on its income. And the American people are rapidly becoming the most heavily taxed people in the world.

Not long must the government continue in its present course before America will be as bankrupt and decadent as Rome in its dying days. Because the United States is the richest nation in the world does not give it license to be the most spendthrift, a temptation always strongest with the rich.

Now a college professor says beauty and brains go together. Any way they go to the altar together.

USE LIE DETECTOR

ST. LOUIS—The lie detector, which may some day succeed "third degree" methods in obtaining confessions from criminals, is one of the devices in the new psychological laboratory at Washington University here.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.,

Two Hollywood girls, Margaret

Roberts and Charlotte Miller, have just sold the first motion picture story they ever wrote to Fox.

It is called "Bad Boy" and Winfield Sheehan thinks so well of it that he has assigned

Raoul Walsh to direct and Sally

Eilers and James Dunn to co-star. This will be the reunion of the team who made such a big hit

last year in "Bad Girl."

Though the happy pair of authors must be given credit for crossing up all the laws of probability, they are not outsiders to the business.

Margaret Roberts, who looks like

Janet Gaynor and is married, has been acting as Frank Craven's secretary. Charlotte Miller, who also is married and has a youngster, has been a reader at the studio.

The story-idea which proved so lucky for them is about a sailor and his sweetheart. As an added honor, they have been asked to help Director Raoul Walsh prepare it for the screen.

One of the new arrivals from

Broadway was dining at Al Levy's

Tavern the other night with a group of Hollywood old-timers. The name of a former pal came up.

"Is he successful out here?" inquired the neophyte.

"Is he?" exclaimed an old-timer.

"He's so successful he can afford to be seen driving a small car!"

A film expedition known as the

Dutch East Indies Exploring Co.,

advertised for a 100 pound girl to be leading woman in several jungle pictures.

A woman in Chino, California,

replied:

"I am 35 years old, unencumbered, weight 132 (can reduce), 5 feet 5½ tall, dark brown curly hair, blue eyes, my own teeth white and even. Not afraid of man or beast, can laugh or weep, ride a bicycle or an elephant.

"Now isn't there some place on the trip for me? Anything from the leading role to washing dishes.

One hour's notice is all I need. Yours for a non-depression jungle." She didn't get the job. Over there, they may wish she had.

HOLLYWOOD PARADE:

Here are a couple of eye-brow letters. Norma Talmadge is going places these evenings with Eugene O'Brien . . . and Lupe Velez was at the La Boheme Cafe the other midnight with Johnny Weissmuller. And all Hollywood thought Johnny was very much the ex-boy friend.

Since the picture syndicates sent out that photo of Mary Pickford riding a bicycle from dressing room to the set, Mary has received six letters asking for the machine when she is through with it.

Those two homesick parents, Sue Carol and Nick Stuart, are due back here Dec. 14, they hope never to leave their baby again. Ever since the two started on that personal appearance tour, a trusted nurse has sent them a daily snapshot of little Carol Lee, and every other week, she has taken 200 feet of motion picture film.

When the Georgia Tech team comes out here to play the University of California, they will have Loretta Young and Eleanor Holm for hostesses. The two stars will go up to Berkeley to root for the southern team and then will entertain the players at the Warner Brothers studio on their return. . . . Fifi Dorsay and her Argentinians will be at the Frolics Cafe on Sunday night. Fifi is guest of honor.

The first Christmas card to reach my desk is from John Leroy Johnson, publicity director at Universal. He sent the cards all the way to Iceland to be mailed back to Hollywood. . . . The new title of the Charles R. Rogers beer picture will be "Foam and Freedom." Gene Towne and Graham Baker thought it up. . . . And Jimmie Durante, who was very searisk on those submarines, wants to know just what his course of action should have been.

DID YOU KNOW—

That Kay Francis was born on Friday, the 13th?

School Directors Consider Changes in Edmonds' Act

"If this scheme should be adopted by the next session of the Legislature, how would it affect Bristol? The reduction in the appropriation of $100 per teacher would mean a loss of $7,200 in the income. The ten per cent reduction in teachers' salaries would amount to approximately $10,000 which shows a gain to the school district of $2,800. This amount would be practically absorbed in the increasing delinquency in the taxes.

"Then too, the question arises, what action will the State take when the moratorium expires? Unless subsequent action is taken by the State the yearly increments will be restored, and unless additional money is appropriated, these yearly increments can only be met by an increase in the tax rate. It looks as if the whole plan is a carefully devised scheme to shift the burden of taxation for school purposes upon the shoulders of the taxpayers.

"The proposal did not meet with the approval of the directors and drew forth a lot of severe criticism. Several of the rural districts figured that they would lose many thousands of dollars, and as the taxpayers would not stand for any increase in the school tax rate, they would not know how to solve the problem. The speaker in replying to their criticism said, that the proposition as yet was simply a recommendation, and might not be acceptable to the Legislature.

"Another scheme is to consolidate the smaller districts with the larger ones. If this should be passed by the Legislature, Bucks County would be divided into ten districts, and Bristol would have to take in most of Bristol Township, Tullytown, and a part of Falls and Middletown Townships. The school boards from the different districts would be consolidated, and the result would be discontent, friction and discord. It looks as if our public school system is destined to pass through the most critical period in its history."

DO YOU KNOW... that "Ted" Megargee, general manager of the Edgely plant of the Paterson Parchment company is the champion speed boat pilot around these parts? "Ted", who skims over the Delaware River during the summer and fall at a high rate of speed in his 25 horsepower Kris-Craft speed boat... has won a number of cups in recent years, and has added three more cups to his trophy room this past season... He won first prize at the Trenton Regatta, first at the Anchor Yacht Club events in the fall, and was first in his class at Torresdale... He was also second in the Wanamaker Cup race held at Torresdale this year.

AND THAT

William B. Nichols, local photographer of the Nichols Studio, Wood street, was a prizefighter in his younger days!... Mr. Nichols was in the U. S. Coast Artillery stationed at Fort McHenry near Baltimore... when he took up fighting in the ring in a serious way, meeting the best in the South in his class... According to the genial photographer, he boxed Young Tommy Dally, who later became lightweight champion of New England... He was also sparring mate to his army buddy, Soldier Burns, who was champion of the South in his time and who is remembered by many old time fight fans... The writer had the pleasure of meeting Soldier Burns this past summer when Burns visited Mr. Nichols on his way to New York with his son, Beldon, who was entered in the National Amateur Boxing Contests in Madison Square Garden.

Was up to the Mutual Aid hall the other night to see some basketball... and did we get action for our two-bits... I'll say we did, so did everyone else who was fortunate enough to be there... The Y. M. A. with a great team beat the Hawks in one of the games... and did the Hawks put up a battle!... They fought till the final whistle, giving the undefeated Radcliffe street boys stubborn opposition. Little Henry Morgan was the outstanding player for the Hawks, scoring nineteen of the Hawks' 26 points... This Morgan man, who is the Principal at the Croydon school, was a member of the Nanticoke H. S. State champions of 1926 and later played on the Bloomsburg State Teachers College team in 1929... and what a sweet player he is!... Will write about some of the other players later... but before closing will remind you that if you want action... go up to the Mutual Aid hall when they play basketball.

Rev. Clarence Howell
Addresses the W. C. T. U.

Those who braved the unpleasant weather to attend the W. C. T. U. meeting last evening were rewarded by an interesting program.

After the business session at which Mrs. George Ardrey, secretary pro tem, reported the November meeting, also the group institute held November 12th, and at which Mrs. Harry Headley gave notes of the county executive meeting at the home of former county president, Mrs. Lettie W. Eyre, Newtown, the speaker was introduced.

The speaker was the Rev. Clarence Howell, pastor of Bristol M. E. Church, he being presented by Mrs. William P. Betz, director of Sailor and Soldier Department, who was in charge of the program. The minister read from the 25th chapter of Matthew using the Moffett translation of the blessings promised those who minister to the needy. "Unto the least of these my brethren," which must include, he said, people of all nations and races in a common brotherhood.

"This spirit of love and sympathy differentiates Christians from all other religions manifested as early as 325 A. D., when the Council of Nice sponsored the first hospital," he told, adding that ex-Senator Pepper stressed in a recent appeal for the needy the need of the inspiration of Christ and love of God in the heart.

Two beautiful knitted afghans, one made by Miss Anna Hay and the second by Miss Eleanor Warner, were on display. These will be sent to Mother Moore for use of hospital patients, as will also magazines, fruits, jellies, phonograph records, and five pounds of hard candy. The candy is donated by Miss Warner.

Two friends of the union from Hulmeville, Misses Grace H. Hillick and Adeline E. Reetz, pleased with vocal numbers, singing in beautiful harmony touching hymns. Miss Reetz with her auto-harp furnished the instrumental accompaniment. Home-made cake and coffee were served by the social committee.

EDGELY ASSOCIATION TO MEET

Name Three Judges
For Lighting Contest

that the entire holiday season will be made especially notable in this section by attractive lighting displays in windows, about the doors and other features of homes and on trees, shrubbery and lawns.

Civic leaders are supporting the movement as one not only most appropriate to a proper observance of the Christmas season but also one possessing psychological values of added importance at the present time.

The contest is entirely open to residents of this territory. Entries may be made not later than Dec. 23.

Light has always symbolized Christmas, and the most suitable as well as the most attractive and cheeriest way to decorate your home at Christmas time is by means of gaily-colored lights.

The Exchange Club submits the following suggestions to brighten the interior as well as the outside of the home, and to help you say "Merry Christmas" to your friends and neighbors with light:

1. Substitute a red lamp for the customary one in your entrance fixture and put a wreath around it.

2. Place electric candles in Christmas wreaths in your windows. (Electric candles are far safer than the wax variety.)

3. Run colored lights through the trees and shrubbery on your grounds.

4. Place Christmas trees in tubs in the yard and trim them with strings of colored lights.

5. Run strings of colored lights along your veranda.

6. Festoon strings of colored lights along the eaves of your home.

7. Place colored lights in your flower boxes.

8. Hang colored lights in wreaths or garlands and hang them in the windows or festoon them about the outside of the house.

9. Place illuminated stars over the doors or on the roof of your house.

10. Illuminate your Christmas trees, both those used indoors and those in the yard.

11. Colored lights, red and green, in twin sockets placed in the windows, are simple but effective decorations.

12. Hang illuminated Christmas bells in the entry or in the window.

Not Guilty But He

to nearly $400 the day before he died." The young widow and her child, according to the testimony of the defendant, were not destitute.

Mrs. Sophia Neapolitan, mother of the boy who was killed in the race, told the court she had received two life insurance policies amounting to $800. The policies named her as the beneficiary because she had "kept them paid up since he was a boy."

Stephen Arcade, local shoemaker, served as the interpreter for the grief-stricken Italian mother. A daughter, Lena, and another married daughter, Jennie Maculicci, both testified their sister-in-law, Jennie Neapolitan, did not live up to her promises. "She positively refused to pay one cent toward the funeral expenses of her husband. It was my mother who paid the undertaker $62 so that he would bury my brother," said Lena.

pieces they are, with their attractive vari-colored flowers, and in them the food can be baked and then placed in the same receptacle upon the table.

Military Outlet Corporation, at 413 Mill street, is offering some splendid hunting knives, varied in style and size. Each is accompanied by a strong leather sheath. For the individual seeking a gift for the sportsman or for the lad who is interested in the out-of-doors, this is a fine suggestion. In addition to these and many other gifts the Military Outlet Corporation also has a goodly array of pen-knives, some with two and three blades. And these latter are nice to put in the boys' stockings Christmas eve.

For tobacco needs Straus Cut Rate Store is suggested. There are smokers in every family, and whether the present be for the pipe, cigar or cigarette fan, Straus has many offerings. Cigars may be had in any make, in boxes of 25 or 50; and then too there are special values in pipes, which you will want to send with any container of pipe tobacco.
